"Are Your Procedures Actually Compliant? Or Are You Just Hoping They Are?"

How Part 145 Repair Stations Finally Get Certainty About Their FAA Compliance Status—Before the Inspector Arrives

Dear Accountable Manager,

Let me ask you something that might keep you up at night: If an FAA inspector walked through your door tomorrow, would your procedures pass scrutiny?

Not "probably." Not "I think so." Do you know—with absolute certainty—that your training manual, quality control system, and maintenance procedures meet every applicable requirement in Part 145?

Most repair station managers don't. And here's why that's dangerous...

> The FAA doesn't grade on a curve. A single unsatisfactory finding can trigger corrective action requirements, increased surveillance, or worse—put your certificate at risk. And by the time you find out there's a gap, it's already on your record.

The problem isn't that you don't care about compliance. The problem is that compliance is genuinely hard to verify. The regulations reference Advisory Circulars. The ACs point to Order 8900.1. The Order contains 18 different DCT forms with over 500 evaluation questions. Cross-referencing all of this against your actual procedures? It takes weeks. And even then, you're never quite sure you caught everything.

That's exactly why we built AVLY.

AVLY is a done-for-you compliance audit service that evaluates your repair station documentation using the exact same criteria FAA inspectors use—all 18 DCT forms, all 512 questions, every applicable CFR section.

Here's what you get:

- ✓ Complete Certainty — Know exactly where you stand on every evaluation criterion
- ✓ Find Gaps First — Identify issues before they become findings on an FAA report
- ✓ Dual Recommendations — Get both "minimum compliance" and "best practice" options for every item
- ✓ Professional Reports — Receive detailed documentation ready for management review or FAA submission

✓ Regulatory Traceability — Every finding tied to specific CFR sections with proper citations

How It Works:

1	2	3
Send us your manuals (RSTM, RSQC, etc.)	We run the complete 18-DCT evaluation	Receive your detailed compliance report

18	512	100%
